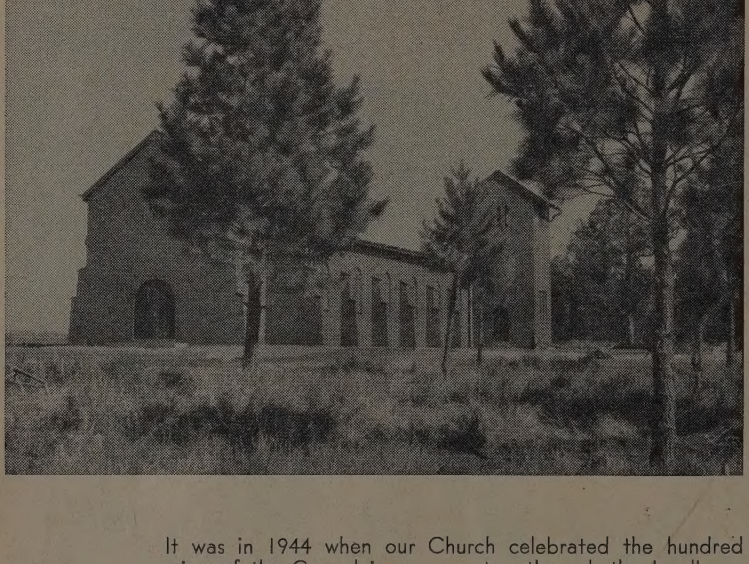
The Church o



Schreuder Memorial Church

It was in 1944 when our Church celebrated the hundred years Jubilee of the coming of the Gospel in our country, through the Lord's servant, Hans Schreuder, sent from Norway. We consider it the coming of the True Light, the Light of the world.

Prior to the day of celebration our Church had been collecting money to form a Jubilee fund which would be a visible expression of our gratitude to God for the Gospel of peace which was sent us by His Grace. Thy Kingdom come also in Zululand!

Then it was decided that with this fund a Church should be erected in commemoration of the coming of the Gospel to Zululand. Where was it to be built? It was decided to build it at Entumeni, because this is the oldest station in our Church.

All the years from 1944 question after question has been asked: "When is this Church going to be built? Why is it not built now?" Owing to the last war building material became so expensive so that it took such a long time before it was built.

The foundation of this Church was laid in October, 1955. Fortunately in those days Dr. Rolf Syrdal visited Zululand, and he laid its foundation stone. On June 3, this year our beautiful Church was dedicated.

From all the districts of our Church pastors, evangelists, deacons, members of the Synodical Assembly, and all Church members were invited. People came in great numbers with eagerness to see the Jubilee Church, and to be present when it was dedicated. We had a great number of people. Some came in automobiles and others on foot. Pastors from other Synods were also invited to be with us in such a great occasion.

On the day of dedication a short service was held in the old Church, the Rev. Philemon Mkize officiating. From there a long procession, led by the pastors, went up to the new Church.

The Superintendent C. Otte led the service, with the other pastors sharing in reading Bible passages. The visiting pastors, representing their Synods, were given chance to give greetings from their Synods. Some sent telegrams and letters of greetings and good wishes because they themselves could not come.

This was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, gatherings we have ever had in our Church.

There were also many unbelievers who had come to see this house of God. May the spirit of God work in their hearts so that they come not only to see this house but also to worship in it.

We are very thankful to our friends in Norway and in America, who helped us a great deal with their prayers and gifts. The balcony in this Church is the gift from America. The bell is the gift from Norway. Above all we thank our heavenly Father, who sent us His saving Gospel, and who has blessed us with such a magnificent Temple! Thy Kingdom come also in Zululand!

zwe, lizwe, lizwe, yizwa izwi likaNkulunkulu."
and, land, land, hear the word of the Lord" (Jer.
:29). So chimes the bell of the new Schreuder Merial Church.

It seemed but a short time ago that we saw the walls ly a few feet high, with window frames supported logs. We remember the day last January when a load bricks came and the men were directed to stack em brick upon brick—lest they be dumped in a heap, oken and chipped. The bell, which had come from rway, a gift from friends in Norway and America, s on the ground, triangularly encased in wood just it had been crated, and we could see through the vices the words engraved on it, "Lizwe, lizwe, lizwe, wa izwi likaNklunkulu."

The same call is being sent forth today as it was 88 ars ago when the original Entumeni Church was ilt. At that time, Hans Schreuder, pioneer missionary Zululand, was calling people to hear the Word of e Lord. Today, God's servants have the same desire.
ey too want the people to "lalela"—which in Zulu eans both to hear and to obey.

Rev. Christian Mtetwa is the present pastor of the hreuder Memorial Church. He visited Norway, the meland of Schreuder, in 1952 after the Hannover nvention, where he was one of the representatives the Zulu Lutheran Church.

On the day of dedication it was not possible for eryone to get into the new church. An estimated 200
t in the old church, thankful to be out of the rain, d several hundred more gathered outside the new church, all able to hear the service via a loud-speaker system. Even though the weather was dismal and raining, the people came. A hike of many miles did not stop them.

At Hlabisa, about 120 miles from Entumeni, there was talk of chartering a bus. Manqele was busy for days telephoning at the hospital, and when he wasn't waiting for the call to "come through," he was busy making other arrangements. . . . "Why sawubona Manqele, are you here again!" Others caught his enthusiasm. About 57 people of the Hlabisa congregation came by specially chartered bus. Missionaries, Zulu pastors and friends from our sister missions as well as our own came from all parts of Zululand and Natal and from the Orange Free State. Cars were loaded. There were approximately 800 people in the new church, which can comfortably seat 450 to 500; many stood in the aisles.

Early in the day, people filled the old church for the brief final service. We cannot say the old church is really closed, it's just that the people have moved to their new church on the same mission station. The old church, now too small to accommodate the congregation, will be used for school purposes and other church meetings.

After the brief "valelisa" (goodbye) service in the old church, the Superintendent, the Rev. C. Otte, and the Rev. G. Lislerud, missionary in charge at Entumeni, led the procession of pastors and people to the new church, where the doors were opened in the name of the Trinity by Supt. Otte. The large golden baptism bowl which Hans Schreuder brought with him from Norway and from which four to five thousand Zulus have been baptized at Entumeni will continue to be used in the new church.

The Schreuder Memorial Church is a beautiful chu . . . its simplicity makes it so. Built into the wall the front of the church is a green-stained window the form of a huge cross. On sunny days the s streams in, making a reflection of the cross in aisle. One would like to sit down in the quiet mosphere and meditate.

We are proud of the labours and enthusiasm of co-workers, Rev. and Mrs. Lislerud. They not o drew the plans for the church but also designed church furnishings. The candle holders, cross on altar, pulpit book rest, the altar rail and baptisn font are all made of wrought iron, and all are symbo in design. For example, cut out in wrought iron the center of the altar rail are the Greek letters Christ, signifying that when a person comes to altar he meets Christ. On either side of this are seve sections of three wrought iron pieces, typifying Holy Trinity.

If you were to attend the service, you would think it much different from a church service in Am ica, except for the language and the people. To us, church itself is a bit different because it is the only c of our mission churches in Zululand which has a b cony, backs on the benches, and side aisles.

Three separate choirs sang from the balcony. One the songs sung by the Pre-Seminary students' ch was the meaningful translation into Zulu of "My G and I walk in the fields together, we walk and talk good friends should and do."

During Dr. Rolf Syrdal's visit to South Africa l October 1955, he laid the cornerstone of the Schreu Memorial Church. The inscription in Zulu is fr Psalm 84:4, "Blessed are those who dwell in Thy hou ever singing thy praise!"

This same verse was used by Supt. Otte in the op ing message on Dedication day. He centered our att on on the cross, and on thanking God for sending a messenger (Schreuder) to bring people out of the darkness of heathendom into light. Ours is not a worship of the spirits of the dead (as is that of the heathen Zulus), but ours is praise to God for sending His witness. The God of power is yet among us. And so is His Church, the living Church, the one not made with hands. Praise be unto God for the house built by His hand.

How many people will hear the Word of the Lord in the new church we shall never know, but this we do know, the doors will be open and the bell will be ringing, "Land, land land, hear the word of the Lord."

The dedication of the church closed with a solemn Holy Communion Service. Many people had left the station, especially those who are living far from the station. The weather was not very good.

At 5 P.M. the bell rang for the evening Communion service.

Many people gathered, though one thought there would be no one. We were so anxious to celebrate the Holy Communion in our new church building.

A little over a hundred members partook of the Lord's Supper.

The church was lighted with candles. The table-like altar was decorated with flowers and two big candles. The cross was in the middle and on either side of the cross was the communion plate and the communion cup.

Everybody in the house was sitting solemnly, and it reminded us of the day of the first communion service in Jerusalem when our Lord sat with the twelve disciples.

The pastor, Rev. C. N. Mtetwa, opened the service by prayer and read in the Gospel of St. Luke, twenty-second chapter, the words of the institution of the Lord's Supper.

He pointed to the fact that though we do not see our Lord with our carnal eyes He is truly present in the Lord's Supper.

When we knelt round the altar the big cross above the altar was shining—and it made great impression in the hearts of the partakers.

It was a great day for Zulu Christians, it was a day of thanksgiving to God for His gifts.

It was also a day of thanksgiving to our brothers and sisters way across the seas who have given great help in the erection of the house.

This day will long be remembered in the history of our church.

May God bless all those who are working very hard for the well-being of our Zulu Church.

The Next Step—Backward

Conrad M. Thompson

Someone has said, "The next step forward for the Christian Church must be backward—backward to the life of the early Christian Church." The proposed church-wide Bible Conference program for October has this objective in mind. The Lutheran Church, which is known as the Church of the open Bible and which claims as its motto, "The Word alone, grace alone, faith alone," needs to be constantly reminded of its heritage and recalled again and again to its source and basis of existence. Thus, in this sense, our next step forward must be backward.

At the Convention, many praises were sung for our Church and its accomplishments. It would be easy to rest on our laurels and become complacent. But if we examined our spiritual life closely, we would probably find that we don't have very much to sing about after all. Take the matter of the Bible in congregational life. Is it the open Book that we claim it to be? What percentage of our Church members read even one chapter a day or refer to it when conducting family altar? How many of our people can back up their beliefs and life in Christ with Scripture references which have been "soaked up" through years of Bible reading and experience? How many of our most earnest Christians are enough at home in the Scripture to enable them to use it effectively in witnessing to their friends and neighbors? Are our Bibles read and meditated upon as they should be? Can it be said of us as was said of the early Church, "They continued steadfast in the apostles . . ."?

One of the most vital needs of our Church in this junction of its history is to take a forward step backward to the life of the early Christian Church so the Word of God can again "dwell in us richly." It isn't my purpose in this particular article to sing the praises of our Church (many could be sung), but rather to raise some danger signals.

The Area of Prayer

One danger lies in the area of prayer. Are we actually doing all the praying we talk about? In recent P-T-R Missions with other synods we have noticed some real differences in prayer preparation in the participating Church bodies. A couple of other Lutheran groups have taken seriously the suggestions given for congregational prayer preparation. They have enlisted hundreds of people in prayer, both individually and in cottage meetings. One of the groups produced more than twice the results, which could very well be due to the urgent praying which was done. In our ELC the attitude has been, "We believe in prayer—our people are praying." But how much praying is done? And if our congregations are given to prayer as it is assumed, why do attendance at the services and the results of the visitation lag so far behind the other two Church groups?

No doubt our experiences of the past regarding prayer have caused us to be overly cautious. We have attained a lingering fear of "preaching" prayer groups and others which judge and condemn. Yet, in spite of these experiences we must, as individuals, groups, and congregations, "come aside and pray awhile. . . ."

The early Church was characterized by its prayer life. The Upper Room was the prerequisite to all of its life and work. They were often "with one accord in prayer." Our Church needs a renewed emphasis on prayer lest we be like a locomotive which has run out of fuel. The Church-wide Bible Conference program is a clarion call to the Church for urgent prayer.

A Confident Faith

Then there is the matter of assurance. Pastors say that this is a critical problem in our congregations. One pastor deems it serious enough to give a ten-night training course on "Assurance" to a group of layme who in turn will help others at cottage fellowsh meetings to "know in whom they have believed."

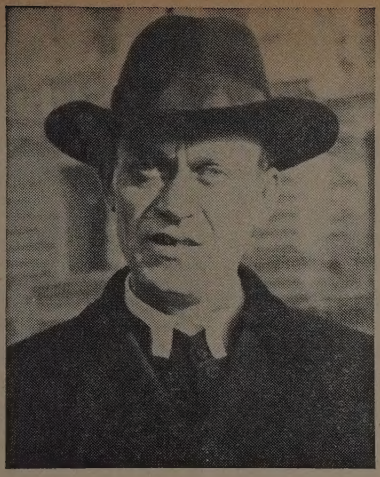
There are dangers, of course, at this point also. Tl pendulum in Lutheranism seems to swing all the w from assuming that every church member is a Chri tian to the assumption that no one is right with Go The Church cannot march victoriously against "t devil, the world and our own flesh" if its members li in constant bewilderment, wondering if they are are not Christians. If our present day challenges stewardship and evangelism are to be effective again the rising tide of secularism, materialism, and a rapid changing problematic world, the Church will have marshal people whose faith in Jesus Christ is jubila and confident. The church-wide Bible Conference pr gram can be used to spell out anew what victorio Christian living means.

The Harvest

Still another danger signal is our blindness to t "fields already white unto harvest." With the prese favorable climate which we have for the Gospel, the seems to be no end to the possibilities of winning pe ple for Christ. In our P-T-R Missions, congregation with rare exceptions, win as many for Christ and H Church as they are willing to put forth the effort win. In other words, in the majority of our America communities there are people to be reached for Chris The fact that another Lutheran Church in a cooperati P-T-R Mission won almost two-and-one-half times t number of people as our Church, underscores this poin If our congregations will zealously pray and witne and mobilize the Christian forces to bring Christ people and people to Christ, the harvest would indee be plenteous. Christ's admonition is still pertinent our day, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that He woul send forth laborers into the harvest."

Our great need at this point is to take a step bac ward to the life of the early Christian Church. It w said of their Christians, "They went everywhere preac ing the Word, the Lord working with them, confirm ing the Word, with signs following." The church-wi Bible Conference program will give congregations a opportunity to revitalize their visitation programs. L visitors can be taught how to use the Word of God i their witnessing. Who can even begin to estimate ho great a Pentecost there would be for the Kingdom God in our Church if every congregation took th step backward.

One might easily conclude that it would please Go to bless our Church with a spiritual awakening if w prayed, witnessed, and had the jubilant, confident a surance of faith of the early Christians.



ishop Ordass

ungarian Lutheran Bishop Lajos Ordass may soon be solved of the charges for which he was sent to ison for nearly two years in 1948 and which led to his ster from ecclesiastical office in 1950.

The Hungarian Government has agreed to retry the se of Bishop Ordass, with every prospect of a favorle result, it was reported here by Dr. Carl E. Lundiist, executive secretary of the LWF.

LWF leaders held seven conferences with officials of e ruling Hungarian Workers (Communist) Party d the Lutheran Church of Hungary, sessions at hich Bishop Ordass was also present.

Dr. Lund-Quist said the LWF representatives "met ith understanding and willingness on the part of ite officials" and were "assured that the State will ant full civil rights" to Bishop Ordass. "If the pres- t trend continues," he added, "the LWF looks forard to Ordass becoming full bishop again."

Bishop Ordass, now 56, is in good health and is ery thankful" to the LWF and the State for work- g out an agreement in his behalf, Dr. Lund-Quist id.

The LWF's statement expressed appreciation of the ct that the legal process for the Bishop's rehabilitation the eyes of civil law had begun and voiced conidence that he would be cleared. This would mean storation of his reputation for integrity and compenation for his sufferings.

r. Lund-Quist made his disclosures after the latest evelopment concerning Bishop Ordass had been diulged by Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the United Lutheran Church in America, and first vice president of the LWF.

The Hungarian Government's pledge to reopen the case was announced by Dr. Fry at the closing session of an eight-day meeting of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches, of which he is chairman. The meeting was held in Hungary—Galyatetoe, about sixty miles northeast of Budapest, where Bishop Ordass has been living quietly in retirement.

Dr. Fry told the committee that there was "every expectation" that the Hungarian Government soon would declare Bishop Ordass innocent of charges of "foreign currency manipulation" that resulted in his imprisonment in October of 1948.

A statement by the Hungarian Lutheran Church said that, if rehabilitated, Bishop Ordass might become either a bishop in retirement or Professor of Theology. Mention of these alternatives would seem to indicate no possibility that he will be restored to active office in the Church.

When a deputation representing the LWF visited Bishop Ordass in his small apartment in Budapest at the close of the World Council's sessions, the Bishop indicated that he wanted his future status to be made clear. Pending this, however, he authorized the Federation to execute an agreement with the Hungarian Government in his behalf.

Dr. Fry's announcement climaxed eight years of effort to restore the former status of a churchman who has been called the Protestant Mindszenty. (Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, Roman Catholic primate of Hungary, was convicted in 1949 of treason charges. Sentenced to life, he was released from prison last year.)

Bishop Ordass made a profound impression upon American Lutherans when he visited the United States for seven weeks in the spring of 1947, when the Communists were coming to power in Hungary. That summer he also attended the organizing assembly of the Lutheran World Federation at Lund, Sweden, and was elected as one of the vice presidents of the Federation.

Although Bishop Ordass knew that his opposition to the Communist regime placed his future in jeopardy, he returned to Hungary and led the Hungarian Lutheran Church's fight against encroachment by the State. As a result he came under steady attack by the Leftist press.

Less than a year later, as Bishop Ordass took a strong stand against nationalization of the church schools, he was arrested and tried on charges of "foreign currency manipulation," based on the claim that he "neglected intentionally to report foreign currency assets to the Hungarian National Bank." He was given a two-year sentence in prison.

The National Lutheran Council, which up to that time had sent about $425,000 in Lutheran World Action funds to Hungary, branded the charges as "pure fabrication" and "completely without foundation in fact." All the funds, it said, went through the Hungarian National Bank and were a matter of record.

Both the Lutheran World Federation and the World Council of Churches intervened in his case, and Lutheran church bodies in various parts of the world issued strongly worded resolutions of protest.

One resolution on Bishop Ordass stated that "our knowledge of him as a great and true Christian causes our faith in his integrity to remain unmoved and our belief in his innocence unshaken." Another described him as a "great Christian leader who is loved and honored throughout the world," and still another voiced "implicit confidence in the integrity" of the Hungarian church leader.

Bishop Ordass served twenty months of his two-year sentence and then, according to an official communique by the Communist government on May 30, 1950, was released in response to his personal petition for commutation of his sentence.

After his release, Bishop Ordass, it was reported, went immediately to the bishop's residence in Budapest, where his wife and four children had been living during his confinement. A short while later, however, he moved to his present apartment where he was reduced to knitting shawls to eke out his church pension and to earn a livelihood for his family.

Only a few weeks before he was granted amnesty, Bishop Ordass was formally ousted from office on grounds that "the grave situation due to the sentence passed by the Usury Court against Lajos Ordass prejudices the interest of the Church, for which reason it sentences him to deposition from his office of diocese bishop."

Later, Dr. Laszlo Dezsery was elected to succeed Bishop Ordass. Dezsery was the only candidate nominated and had the backing of the Communist regime, as did Bishop Lajos Veto when he was elected in 1948. The latter is looked upon as the senior bishop, but it is understood that Dezsery has the highest authority in the Church.

Early in 1952, Bishop Zoltan Turoczy and Joseph Szabo, who were named to office in regular church elections before the People's Republic was established in Hungary, resigned. The Church of 500,000 members was then reorganized from four into two dioceses, in charge of Bishop Dezsery and Veto.

In 1952, with both of the present bishops in attendance, the second assembly of the Lutheran World Federation named Bishop Ordass as an honorary member of its executive committee. The honor was accorded by a rising vote, with all six members of the Hungarian delegation remaining in their seats.

THE FOURTEENTH SUNDAY AFTER TRINITY
September 2, 1956
Text: Luke 17:11-19

It isn't required of us that we remain in the "midst Samaria and Galilee," or that we speak now at len of the ingratitude of the nine anonymous lepers w were cleansed and who failed to return thanks. It far more important that we apply the text to this pres day, to the days of your years, for instance, and to y life. This we do, not to offer judgment on your life, to clarify the issues of daily living. For it is most c tainly true that if you are a Christian, one who received the fullness of forgiveness and the sonship w the Father that is yours by grace (the merciful incli tion of God toward you and fallen man) through fa (the inclination of your heart to God), then it follo that you are one to whom the cleansing power Christ has been very real.

But what about it, my friend? Do you return tha to Him who has saved you? Do you remember your prayers a word of appreciation for the cleans that you have received?

I dare say that of all sins and evil that befall man of earth the deepest rut and the worst to b is the sin of ingratitude. Begin with the child w must learn to say "thank you" and continue throu the adolescent years of that child who still is in need learning to say "thank you." Go along a bit farther a watch the man in his mature years who seldom s a word of thanks to wife or child, whose attitude best found in his complaint that "things just are going my way" and who cultivates the spirit of selfi ness that in the end is his undoing. Things have changed so very much, really—there were ten m cleansed, and one who offered thanksgiving. Too there are millions who claim the banner of Christ, w live under the shelter of and the inspirational messa of the Church who seldom if ever voice a word thanksgiving to God or to man.

Yesterday, we have seen in the text, men were u grateful. Today we know this is true. "Yesterday a today the same" is therefore not only true of Christ o Lord who loves and serves and gives Himself for but it is true of men likewise who fail to offer thank vows to Him.

What about you, friend? Did you offer thanks yest day? Today? Or are you one of those who go alo quite content, taking things for granted? Then if t be so, take a cue from the Psalmist and let his pray be yours—"O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is go and His mercy endureth forever." Amen.

Mary Nygaard Peterson

Engines chugged and motors hummed and airplanes rent the air. Anvils clanged and hammers banged, while crowds milled everywhere. Men were hurrying and scurrying—filled with hate and frantic fear. One thought, one hope, one motive drove them on: prepare. A struggle was at hand—the urge to fight. Supremacy, prestige, preservation of culture—the fight must come. A fight to the death, for life itself.

ve us ships, and tanks, and guns—and planes to cover the air."

Amid the haste, the noise and fury, unnoticed by throng, a voice called—soft, insistent, clear.

To you, O men, I call, and to the sons of men. O iple ones, learn prudence. O foolish, pay attention."

Men, heedless of the voice, rushed headlong past. t here and there, among the milling herd, one ained his ears to hear.

Does not wisdom call? Does not understanding se her voice on the heights beside the way?"

And to those few, the voice went on.

I have counsel and sound wisdom. I have insight; ave strength. Riches and honor are with me, endur- wealth and prosperity."

Listen to the voice," the few implored. "Hush this se and wild endeavor. This is Wisdom's call."

The voice of wisdom—what is that?" the scoffers red and hurried on their way.

This time, to them the answer came; though they used to hear.

The Lord created me at the beginning of His work, first of His acts of old. I was daily His delight.

And now, my sons, listen to me—hear instruction d be wise."

One listened, here and there, the rest passed on in ste.

We must sail the seas, and watch the skies; man guns, and build the forts. The time is short. Hurry! e struggle is at hand."

Fools die for lack of sense," the voice warned. "He o despises the Word brings destruction on himself. e strong towers of the wicked will come to ruin."

Be quiet, idle gabbler," the multitude commanded. ou become wearisome. How is it you are idle? Come, p us with our plan."

Many are the plans of man, but it is the purpose the Lord that will be established," Wisdom said.

Then what would He have us do? Can you tell us plan of the Lord?"

"If your enemy is hungry, give him bread to eat; if he is thirsty, give him water to drink. Feed him also the Bread of Life," the voice advised.

"Away with you, foolish one," thundered the mass. "Would you betray our land? Feeding the enemy would give him greater strength to defeat us."

"He who trusts in the Lord is safe. The Lord is a stronghold in the day of trouble. He knows those who take refuge in Him."

But the cry came even stronger from the crowd,

"Draw water for the siege. Strengthen the forts. Fill storehouses with food."

Yet Wisdom called. In the paths she took her stand; beside the gates, in front of the town. At the entrance of the portals she cried aloud, "Know ye not that unless the Lord watches over the city, the watchmen stay awake in vain?"

But men refused to heed.

Then, "Woe is me," came Wisdom's voice. "The godly man has perished. There is none upright among men. They all lie in wait for blood and each hunts his brother with a net. Their hands are upon what is evil, to do it diligently.

"The day of their confusion is at hand. The earth will be desolate because of its inhabitants, for the fruit of their doings.

"Thus says the Lord, 'Cursed is the man who trusts in man; blessed is the man who trusts in the Lord.'

"What the wicked dread will come upon them."

Calamity came then, like the whirlwind, and panic struck like a storm. Distress and anguish filled the hearts of men.

Vainly, they called for Wisdom. Diligently, they sought where she might be found: in the streets, in the markets, on the top of the wall, at the entrance of the city gate.

But she would not answer because they had hated knowledge and did not choose the fear of the Lord.

They were sated with their own devices, killed by their turning away. Their cities were cut off from the land, and their strongholds thrown down.

Yet, here and there, the occasional one who heard the voice of Wisdom dwelt secure. No dread of evil filled his soul. His trust was in the Lord above.

"Some trust in horses and some in chariots, but we will trust in the name of the Lord our God."

A Correction

Several readers have called our attention to an error in fact in our editorial of July 17, "Some Post-Convention Reflections." There it was stated, "While we did not count (and there were no ballot votes which would have given an accurate count) we are quite sure that at no time Monday were there 300 voting members of the convention present; at times only 200." Our attention has been called to the fact that a ballot was had in the early afternoon, at which time 502 votes were cast. Our estimate, in other words, was about 200 votes low. At the time we wrote, the Convention Journal for Monday was not yet available.

We do believe, however, that it should be stated that our error does not invalidate the point we were attempting to make. One vote cast for each five eligible voting members is certainly a pitiful showing! Nor is this a concern of recent origin in our Church. In 1940, the convention adopted a resolution "deploring" the fact that delegates did not take their duties more seriously and "urging upon each and every pastor and delegate to discharge the duties placed upon him more faithfully and diligently. . . ."

"Shall We Have a Drink?"

Readers will recall an article entitled, "Shall We Have a Drink?" which appeared in these pages a year or so ago. Author was Mrs. Russell H. Zachariasen, Hopkins, Minn. Mrs. Zachariasen, then Miss McLeod, worked in the Luther League office for a number of years. At that time she was also managing editor of the Youth Issue of LUTHERAN HERALD and was widely known throughout The Evangelical Lutheran Church.

When the Zachariasen family moved to Hopkins, they became members of the Augustana Evangelical Lutheran Church. For that reason, Hazel submitted her article not only to LUTHERAN HERALD, but also to the Lutheran Companion, Augustana's official paper, which published it a few weeks before we did.

We are happy to announce that the Augustana Press, Rock Island, Ill., has now issued the article in pamphlet form. With an attractive cover, it is 22 pages in length. The price is ten cents per copy.

Strange as it may seem, the amount of truly usable literature on temperance and prohibition is anything but plentiful; most of the articles on these subjects which come to us repel rather than attract, because of their extremism. The one by Mrs. Zachariasen is a golden exception. We are therefore happy that Augustana has made it available in tract or pamphlet form. We commend it heartily for general use throughout our Church.

Some books of history are intended to be read specialists in the field and should be reviewed o by historians. Others are written with a wider au ence in view and can be reviewed as well, perh better, by one of those for whom it is written. Su is a volume which appeared a few months ago: Basic History of Lutheranism in America, by Ab Ross Wentz. (Muhlenberg Press, Philadelphia. Clo 403 pages. Bibliography and Index. $5.00.)

Dr. Wentz is professor of Church History at Get burg Seminary, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, one of theological seminaries of The United Lutheran Chu in America. In addition to occupying this profes ship since 1916, he was head of the institution fr 1940 to 1951. The volume which now appears is tenth he has written in the field of American Luthe history. Dr. Wentz may correctly be called "the d of American Lutheran historians."

The purpose of A Basic History is twofold, and may well center our comment on the volume arou those two stated purposes. The first is to provide introduction to a tremendously wide and complex fie the entire sweep of Lutheran history on this c tinent. "In this sense," says the author, "it is basic." might put it this way: The volume intends to prov the information about Lutheranism in America wh any intelligent Lutheran, lay or clergy, should have wants. To give that information concisely enough get it into 400 pages is in itself quite a feat. At same time to make the volume exceedingly read is a still greater feat. Both Dr. Wentz has done.

The second purpose of the book is to orient history with the history of our nation. Lutherans as old in America as the nation. There has been a c stant inter-play between the life and progress of nation and the life and progress of the Luthe Church. It is the second purpose of Dr. Wentz orient the history of the Church with the life culture of the nation. We have seen no volume succeeds better on this point.

With one exception, the sections of the volume their titles from the era of American history d with: "In Colonial Times," "At the Birth of the tion," "In the Youth of the Republic," "In a Perio Internal Discord," and "In the Days of Big Busin For the closing section, which covers the period f 1910 to the present, the title refers to the internal opment of the Church rather than the nation. It is ed, "In an Age of Larger Units," and is, actually, history of the Lutheran unity movement in erica.

e reviewer, being a member of The Evangelical theran Church, was naturally interested in seeing w Dr. Wentz would deal with our own Church. r conclusion is that he shows the highest quality of torical insight in his dealing with us as with all other groups of present-day Lutherans. It would easily possible to extract from the various sections the volume the references to our Church, put them ether, and call it a compendium of the history of Church. We could find no inaccuracy in fact, and interpretation is sympathetic, discerning, and cor- t. In fact, it will be good for any ELC person to d this volume just to get a picture of how The angelical Lutheran Church fits into the much larger ture of Lutheranism in America.

t is the last section of the book, "In an Age of rger Units," which interests us most. That is the urch of today, the Church of which we are a part. is inevitable that even the most objective historian ll find his judgment colored by the fact that this the Church of which he is a part, that here he is aling with a living organism which he sees develop- g before his very eyes. It is quite significant, as it ms to this reviewer, that Dr. Wentz here proves nself to be an optimist—or, more accurately, a man faith, faith in the great Lord of the Church, and th in the guidance of the Holy Spirit in directing development of His Church.

Here are all the movements, wise and sometimes not wise, leading Lutherans closer and closer to one other. Here is the Lutheran Church, now completely similated into American life, striving for a common eeting ground with the non-Lutheran Christians who rround them. And here is the Lutheran Church in merica becoming more and more mindful of its re- ions with the Church all over the world, Lutheran well as non-Lutheran. On this point, the last para- aph of the book is worthy of quotation:

> The quality of American Lutheran participation in the odern ecumenical movement shows that after three cen- ies, they are no longer on the defensive for their evan- ical positions. The Lutheran Churches in America can cept responsibility for a clear and impressive testimony to Christ and the Gospel, not only among American Christians but among Christians of the whole world.

This final point: More and more we need to see ourselves as a part of the whole, in short, to see our place in history and in contemporary life. The "one world" concept applies to the Church as it does to secular society. To get that viewpoint, with the proper perspective of maintaining the truth God has given us while at the same time sharing with others and receiving from others, one needs to know history. Dr. Wentz's book will be an invaluable aid in getting that viewpoint.

Let's Talk It Over!

The other day the editor answered a questionnaire on the proposed union. It came from Mr. R. H. Alexander, Billings, Mont., president of our synodical Brotherhood. Our understanding is that, on the basis of the answers received to the questionnaire, a suggested program on the forthcoming union will be developed. This is intended for use in local Brotherhoods throughout the Church.

We hope and trust that many a Brotherhood will find it possible to make use of whatever program suggestions are finally arrived at. The tenor of the questions was such that we are quite convinced that a really usable program will result.

Further, it is to be hoped that the other auxiliaries of the Church will make something similar available to their local societies. Women's Missionary Federation, Luther League, and Lutheran Daughters of the Reformation—all of them should be vitally interested in such a project.

It appears now that there is no doubt but that the union is going to come. In all probability it will be in accordance with the suggested Timetable found in the Report of the Joint Union Committee for 1956. If that proves to be correct, it means that only three and one half years remain before the new Church begins to function.

It is well and good that committees shall be hard at work making final arrangements and that official boards shall be setting their respective houses in order. All that may be taken for granted. Of fully as much importance is it that the people of the Church (who are the Church) shall be cognizant of what is happening and shall be informed on all the details concerning the new Church. Further, anything that can be done to acquaint ourselves with our sister bodies will be worth doing.

Add all that together and you will have a number of compelling reasons for such a program as the Brotherhood is planning. We hope the other auxiliaries will undertake something similar.

Many of the visits in our homes have no special preparation. We are glad to have folks drop in to chat about the things which make up our common interests. We are much happier people if we have time to sit down with our neighbors to talk about the small things and the big things which enter into our living. This should be a special part of the way Christian people share their lives and their hopes with each other.

The Every Member Visit program is a planned approach to this matter of visiting in the homes in our congregations. It aims at bringing all members into a series of visits which get at the central aspects of life in the Christian Church. These visits help people to talk about faith in Christ, the fruits of that faith, about the Church and its work, about giving money and planning for the future. It is intended to be the same sort of easy, natural visit amongst neighbors which brings a good feeling to any of us.

The Every Member Visit is a visit which has an interesting story of preparation behind it. It doesn't just happen. The Department of Stewardship has been in the midst of preparation for the fall of 1956 ever since the 1955 program was completed. It was one year ago that a carefully studied program was presented to the congregations, which they might enter if they should choose to do so. About 600 congregations did take part in it, completely or in part.

Beginning immediately after Easter this year, representatives of the Department, Mr. Tillman Stevens, Pastor C. J. Grimstvedt, and Pastor O. A. Schmidt, conducted District Training Schools. To these schools were invited some of the finest laymen in our congregations, with the request that they be training directors in the circuits in September and October. In several places two men were invited to serve in one circuit, because of distances and the number of congregations involved. Two full days of study and discussion followed.

Out of these District Schools have come 170 men, ready to serve their Lord, their Church, and the congregations of the ELC. They have not only received the training, but have given many hours and much effort in visiting pastors and church boards to explain the program and share their enthusiasm for it.

These men are now available in every circuit of the Church except two, and efforts are still being made to serve those circuits.

What Do These 170 Men Do?

When a congregation enrolls in the Every Member Visit plan, it is informed about the place and the time where this Training Director will conduct a series of four training sessions. To these sessions are to come the General Committee for the EMV in that congregation, together with similar groups from other congregations which have enrolled. This Committee consists of six people. It will include more if the young people taking part, with their YES program. The pastor, course, belongs with the group if he can arrange it.

There are four of these training sessions this f For those who follow the recommended schedule, th will come on September 10, September 24, October and October 22. In a few instances there is a shift of week in the entire schedule. Following each of sessions the members of the Committee go back to th congregation to direct their own co-workers in the p gram which will bring a visit to each home.

How Many Congregations?

At the time of writing over 500 congregations h enrolled compared to less than 50 at the same tim year ago! That is very encouraging to those who h prepared the way thus far. The goal is to have ev congregation join in this valuable and stimulating ch ter in congregational life. Congregations may enroll to the time of the first training session.

The Values

The values in the EMV program are varied. There a place for a thorough study of what a congregat thinks it ought to be doing as compared with what has done. There is a way to discover what the resour of a congregation are if it could claim the interest a support of every member. There is a place for cussing why congregations should attempt great thin for God, which leads to the deepening of many lives Christ. There is the personal victory that comes to dividuals who begin to give their money as all-c Christian people, experiencing a spiritual revival wh includes their possessions.

There is a claim on the time and effort of many p ple which gives them a new sense of how much th are worth to the Christian cause, after sitting on side-lines and letting others work and give. There i strengthening of the congregation and of the work the ELC.

The Every Member Visit plan is based on the idea th every member of every Christian congregation ought have an annual look at its life and its program, a then plan a generous support of the congregation as way of confessing his Christian faith, love, and hope

WARDS

Raymond M. Olson
Director of Stewardship

harting a Course . . . the ECV

e Evangelical Lutheran Church has been charting a v course in organizing its work and in planning to port that work. This began in 1954 when the Gen- l Convention adopted a three-part Budget, and stated t the 1957-58 Budget would not be apportioned to congregations but would depend on the setting of allenging objectives" by the congregations.

ince 1954 there has been much discussion and study to how to make the transition from apportionments the Budget to this new method. Hopes have been ced that this might be the greatest hour in our wardship development thus far.

Out of this study came the idea of having an Every ngregation Visit. This would mean that every con- gation in the ELC, before setting its objective for budgeted program of the Church for 1957, would ve the interesting and new experience of being visited a team of two to discuss the needs of the Church and opportunities.

me Premises

time went along it was possible to state some of the mises, some of the main ideas, which were behind h a course. One of them was that we believed that spiritually mature people would give more to the rk of the Church without apportionments than with m. As earnest and mature Christians they would lcome the chance to sit down and talk about it with ople from neighboring parishes.

Another premise which emerged was that it seemed sirable for a congregation to review the program of ELC, just as it is desirable for individuals to review ir congregation's program before planning how much give in the coming year.

A third premise which developed was that a con- gation is helped when it has some specific guides to nsider in deciding on its objective for the ELC. It will l state the amount itself, but will not make its plans the dark."

hat the ECV Is Not ith a new program, with the Church moving out on new course, it may be helpful to emphasize the posi- es by looking at some negatives. There are some ngs the Every Congregation Visit is not.

It is not a plan for telling a congregation how much to give to the Budget of the ELC. The day of apportionments will be gone in 1957. Neither is it a plan for exercising authority over a congregation. The team of visitors will meet with the congregational leaders upon invitation, with mutual agreement as to time, and mutual concern for the work of the Church.

The Every Congregation Visit (ECV) is not the same as the Every Member Visit (EMV). The latter happens within a congregation, among its members. The ECV calls for a visit to the leaders of a congregation by a team from outside the congregation. Either plan can be carried on without the other, although the two will fit together as parts of a total plan.

Furthermore, the ECV is not based on the idea that a congregation cannot and will not make a good decision about its ELC Budget objective without a visit. It does assume that it is helpful to discuss such an important matter with someone outside the membership so as to be sure of the wisest possible decision.

The ECV Plan

Invitations have gone out from the Department of Stewardship, usually on the nomination of circuit stewardship secretaries, to 554 pastors in the United States and Canada. These are invitations and requests to become members of the teams of visitors. The pastors are to invite a lay person who is well acquainted with the Church's work to join the team. This will make a group of visitors numbering more than 1,100!

These men are requested to prepare themselves for their new and interesting experience by attending an ECV Briefing Session. Thirty-two of these have been arranged at strategic points across the Church, to be held the last week of August and the first twenty days of September.

Wherever possible, circuits will be holding special sessions to consider the work of the Church as outlined in the new Budget. These meetings will come before the visitors start making their calls, in order to help leaders in the congregations get some background on the subject.

The plan for the visit calls for the team to spend an evening with the leaders of a congregation, including trustees, deacons, officers of auxiliaries, members of the Proposal Committee of the EMV. At the close of the evening the intention is to arrive at a "Recommended Objective" or a proposed amount which the leaders believe the congregation should seek to provide. This amount would be subject to later review by the official body which makes such decisions, usually through adoption of the congregation's budget for the coming year.

These are the elements in the new course which we are charting for a challenging support of the 1957-58 Budget of the ELC. The Church will do well to prepare for these coming weeks with much prayer.

JOY OF WORK
Read Genesis 2:15

The Lord God took the man and put him in the garden of Eden to till it and keep it.

Man is the "crown of God's creation" but man was not created to be an ornament. He was made to be a useful part of God's creation. And God out of His great wisdom gave man work. There is no happiness in being a "decoration." Man must know and feel that his presence on earth has a purpose. He wants to have a share in the world's work.

Each person's work, so long as it is honest, has the blessing of God upon it. Whether we work with our hands or with our minds; whether it is on the farm or in the office, our little spot is an important spot if we "till it and keep it."

Let us thank God for work. Let us strive to improve what we are doing. Take pride in what we do, always remembering that it is a part of our stewardship. And our work can be done to the glory of God.

Thank you, dear God, for the high satisfactions that come through toil. Keep us good workmen in Thy Name. Amen.

HARD BUT RIGHT
Read Matthew 5:43-48

But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, so that you may be sons of your Father who is in heaven.

Without Christ in your life the only way you attempt to get along with others is exactly as He said was the custom: "You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy." In other words, get along with those who are friendly, and hate those who do you wrong. This is a simple solution and one that is used by those who do not know Christ.

But when Christ is in the picture it is different. Love plays a leading role. It applies both for friends and enemies. That does not mean that it's easy. Often it is very difficult. Our human nature keeps prompting us to hand back the same sort of treatment we receive.

But Christ does not leave us to our own strength. If we need to "count to ten" to battle down the temptation to be unfriendly, the Spirit will join us in the counting. Christ will help us carry out His bidding!

HOW TO WIN
Read Romans 8:37-39

No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us.

In a day when "do-it-yourself" is the theme, many people are discovering even if the tools are ready and the directions are plain, the result of the work is not always as good as it was expected to be. Sometimes it requires the hand of a skilled workman to do the job right.

In the battle of life against all foes much more than a "do-it-yourself" kit is necessary if we are to come out on the side of victory. By himself who can stand up against "tribulation . . . distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?"

To win against such an array, and despite such foes, is a promise of God in Christ. Paul was sure of it. He listed the foes and concluded that none of them could separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus. And here is the answer on how to win. It comes about when we lose to Christ so that He may do the winning for us. It is a matter of "let go, let God."

CHOOSING UP SIDES
Read Luke 10:38-42

"Mary has chosen the good portion, which shall not be taken away from her."

Choosing up sides is fun when you are a child. You pick the team you want to play the game with. All of life is a choosing process and in some matters it is more than mere fun that is involved. Sometimes it is a matter of life and death. Mary chose wisely when she chose the Word. Jesus said that she had chosen something that could not be taken away from her.

Recently a man lost his dear wife. After a few weeks he sat down and wrote to many of his friends thanking them for their thoughtfulness during the time of his loss. Then he confessed that in the experience of his deep sorrow he came to understand more clearly than ever before that the only thing that offered hope was the Word of God.

How grateful we should be for this Word! In it we have life. And while things of the world topple and fall, come and go, the Word remains eternally the same. God lead us into absolute faith in His Word.

DON'T DRIVE STAKES
Read I Corinthians 7:29-31

For the form of this world is passing away.

Some years back in the history of our country, many of the very wealthy people built elaborate homes on large estates. Today these homes are called "white elephants." Some of them are converted into museums, club houses, or apartments. Because they were made so large, built so expensively, and furnished so lavishly, men have often remarked, "The builder must have thought he was going to stay here forever."

God has not forbidden man to build homes, nor has He said that man should not have a fine home. But He has reminded man that he is not "here to stay." We are to live life normally and well, but we are constantly to bear in mind that we are pilgrims. We are "on the way through."

Some campers came to a clearing and it was decided to spend the night there. "Don't drive any stakes," the leader said, "we will be leaving early in the morning."

Tend to living for now and eternity.

Saturday, September 8
A GOOD EYE
Read Matthew 6:22-23

"The eye is the lamp of the body. if your eye is sound, your whole body will be full of light."

The King James reading is, "If the eye be single." The meaning is to have the eye set upon one thing. To have a single objective in mind. Then the whole body, the will. the mind, and all actions will work toward that one goal.

People always bend themselves toward what they worship. They work for what they want. We go to school to earn degrees; we work and save to buy an automobile or to build a home. We know very well that to arrive at a goal we have to plan and work, and not give up until we have come to it.

To have God as the goal is to have a sound eye, and one that admits light into all we think and do. The call of God is to set out upon the way leading to Him, and there is no higher road, no finer endeavor than that.

Give us singleness of purpose, O God. Lead us ever toward Thee. Amen.

WORLD COUNCIL'S INDEPENDENCE

Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft, general secretary of the World Council of Churches, told the annual meeting of the Council's Central Committee, meeting in Hungary, that the Council "lives its own life in complete independence from any particular political system or ideology and desires to render its witness to all parts of the world." He stated that this attitude had been demonstrated again when the committee accepted the invitation of Hungarian Protestants to hold its 1956 sessions in that country. It was the first meeting in a Communist country.

Dr. Visser 't Hooft added that "at the same time we believe that churches living under differing systems can and must learn from each other. There is mutual correction in seeing ourselves as others see us, and this is one of the most precious things in the ecumenical movement."

The World Council executive went on to assert that "by our very nature we are a service agency and we must resist every move toward making the Council a centralized executive body apart from the Churches which compose it. Every one of our activities has grown up in response to the real needs and demands of the Churches expressed through the voice of the Assembly. As a result, we are sometimes accused of lack of courage in ecumenical pioneering. But our reason for inaction in matters not decided upon by the Churches was, and is, simply that we fail in our greatest objective as soon as we try to exist by ourselves and apart from the life of the Churches."

SHIELDS SHOW SYMBOLS

This set of 13 shields depicting symbols of the Apostles and St. Paul has been designed as visual aids in religious education classes. The colored symbols have been executed in relief on hard resin plaster by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Post of Cranford, N. J. The symbols are, left to right, top row: keys and cross saltire—St. Peter; three money bags—St. Matthew; fish resting on a Gospel—St. Simon the Zealot; chalice and serpent—St. John; and cross with two loaves of bread—St. Philip. Second row: sailboat—St. Jude; carpenter's square and spear—St. Thomas; saw—St. James the Lesser; flaying knives—St. Bartholomew; and shell and sword—St. James the Greater. Bottom: St. Andrew's Cross—St. Andrew; ax between pages of an open Gospel—St. Matthias; and sword with Gospel—St. Paul. Each design symbolizes an event in the Apostles' lives and martyrdoms.

NEW PRESIDENT OF WALDORF COLLEGE

Sigvald D. Fauske

Sigvald D. Fauske, head of the department of religion at Concordia College, has been named to the presidency of Waldorf College, Forest City, Iowa. He takes over his new duties on September 1.

The Rev. Fauske succeeds Dr. Sidney A. Rand, a Concordia graduate and former faculty member, who becomes the Executive Director of the Department of Christian Education.

Mr. Fauske was born in China to missionary parents and spent the first sixteen years of his life in the north central provinces of Honan and Hupeh. He attended the Lutheran grade and high school at Kikungshan, Honan, China; St. Olaf College, Northfield, and Luther Theological Seminary. He served as pastor at Van Hook and Sanish, North Dakota. He was then pastor at Hatton, North Dakota, and from there was called to be the first Luther League evangelist of The Evangelical Lutheran Church.

In 1947 Pastor Fauske accepted the call to go to China as Luther League missionary and spent the following year studying at the University of California. However, during that year China was closed to missionaries. He then accepted the call to teach at Concordia College. During the summers of 1949 and 1951 he studied at Biblical Seminary in New York, and in August of 1954 attended the Institute on Mental Health at St. John's University.

Mrs. Fauske is a registered nurse, graduating from Fairview Hospital. She also attended the University of California and Concordia College. The Fauskes have five children.

FACULTY NEWS NOTES

At the end of his three-year assignment as senior representative of Lutheran World Service in Germany, Dr. Richard W. Solberg was honored in Hannover with the Johann Heinrich Wichern Badge, distinctive award of the German Evangelical Inner Missions.

Dr. Solberg, who is returning to Augustana College at Sioux Falls to become head of its history department, was honored for his service since 1953 in Munich, Stuttgart, and Berlin, from where he supervised the entire LWS program in Germany.

Bishop Hanns Lilje of Hannover presented the award to Dr. Solberg in the name of the Germany Central Commission of Inner Missions. Special recognition was given to Dr. Solberg's work in Berlin, where he supervised the LWS program in close cooperation with the churches of East Germany.

DEACONESS CONSECRATED

Miss Olive Hanson, a nurse, was consecrated to the Office of the Diaconate at a special service held on August 5 at Bethel Church, Madison, Wis. Dr. Morris Wee, senior pastor of Bethel Church, preached the consecration sermon. Miss Hanson was presented by Dr. J. C. K. Preus, executive secretary of the Board of Christian Education and chairman of the Commission on Diaconic Service. The consecrator was Dr. Martin Anderson, former president of the Eastern District. Deaconess Shirley Barns, field representative for the Commission on Diaconic Service, was sponsor for Miss Hanson and presented the Deaconess Cross.

Miss Hanson is a native of Hoffman, Minn. She graduated from the School of Nursing, University of Minnesota, in December, 1947, and has attended the College of Education, majoring in Nursing Education. She graduated from the Bible Training Course of the Lutheran Bible Institute, Minneapolis, in 1951 and from the Missionary Training Course in 1952.

Miss Hanson completed the course at the Christian Service Institute in the summer of 1956 and was recommended by the Colloquium Committee of the Commission on Diaconic Service for consecration to the Office of the Diaconate. She plans to enter service as a parish deaconess.

EMV ENROLLMENTS

HOME ON FURLOUGH

Every year many of our missionaries come home on furlough. I know that many of our people would like to have fellowship with our missionaries when they are at home, so we are listing those who have already arrived or who are expected later in 1956. Those who are listed without address can be temporarily contacted through the office of the Board of Foreign Missions.

We hope that you will write to welcome them home, and that you will be able to visit some of them, and that you will have an opportunity to hear their story in your local congregation.

CIRCUIT CREDIT UNION

Members of the Goose River Circuit, North Dakota District, and their families have formed their own credit union in order to provide personal loans at low cost to one another, and to encourage thrift and saving. Named the Goose River Credit Union, the new group was reported by the North Dakota Credit Union League. About 500 persons will be eligible to join. Oliver Aune is treasurer. The credit union will be owned and operated entirely by its members, under a government charter.

TO BE ASSOCIATE EDITOR

The Rev. William H. Gentz, Oswego, Oregon, has accepted a call to become associate editor of LUTHERAN HERALD and book editor for Augsburg Publishing House. His work with the church paper will include the duties of news editor, both ELC and general. He will also share in the work of editorial writing and will have charge of a new "Book Review" section for the paper. He will begin his new work Nov. 15.

Pastor Gentz was ordained in 1945. After serving as assistant pastor at Bethel Church, Madison, Wis., he was pastor of a Home Mission congregation at Monrovia, Calif., then assistant pastor at Glendale, Calif. He has been pastor of Our Savior's Church, Oswego, since 1952.

LUTHERAN LADIES SEMINARY REUNION

A reunion of former teachers and students of Lutheran Ladies Seminary, formerly at Red Wing, Minn., was held during the national convention of the Women's Missionary Federation, in Minneapolis. The group were the guests of Mrs. Hans Aude (the former Louise Erickson) at her home. When the Seminary buildings were destroyed by fire in 1920, Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, offered its facilities to the Seminary Board. Since then, the records of the Seminary have been kept at Luther College. In appreciation, the L.L.S. Alumnae Association has for several years sponsored a Student Loan Fund for students at Luther. Since many of the students at the Seminary were from the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, the Association this year voted to give $100 to Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind. Newly elected officers are: president, Mrs. Nora Hjermstad Fjelstad; vice president, Mrs. Norma Thronson Kammon; secretary, Mrs. Louise Erickson Aude; treasurer, Mrs. Rhoda Helgeson Bennett.
